WELCOME!

Welcome to the National Kiko Registry's Cumberland Meat Goat Conference and Spotlight Sale. The NKR's annual conference has become the premier educational and networking event for Kiko producers everywhere. Nowhere else can one meet as many Kiko producers, see as many Kiko goats or learn from so many small ruminant educators as here. From the serious side of learning how to better manage your goatherd to socializing with old friends and making new ones, the annual NKR conference offers a fun experience for the entire family.

The Annual Spotlight Kiko Sale offers some of the top genetics in the country and the buyers set the price. Overall, it should be a great weekend for all those involved and for the Kiko industry as a whole. We hope you enjoy yourselves and if the NKR management can do anything to make your experience better, please let us know.

Conference Speakers

Dr. Andrew P. Griffith is an Associate Professor and Extension Livestock Economist with the University of Tennessee. He started serving Tennessee producers in May 2012 after completing his PhD at Oklahoma State University. Prior to earning his terminal degree, he earned a B.S. degree in Agriculture from Tennessee Tech University and a M.S. degree in Agricultural Economics at the University of Tennessee. He is originally from Hampshire, Tennessee where his family operates a commercial cow-calf operation, and where he produces soybeans and stocker cattle. His extension program focuses on marketing and production economics of cattle, goats, sheep, and dairy while also having an emphasis on forage economics.

Royce Towns is a native of Lafayette, Tenn., having been raised on a beef cattle, tobacco and goat farm. He holds a bachelor's degree in Animal Science from Tennessee Tech in Cookeville, and a master's degree in Ruminant Nutrition from the University of Tennessee – Knoxville. For the past 32 years he has been employed by Tennessee Farmers Cooperative, spending the majority of that time working as a field nutritionist. For the past 12 years he has been responsible for beef cattle, sheep and goat formulations.

Dr. Steve Hart is a Research Scientist II at Langston University in Oklahoma. He has a 50% extension appointment and has worked at Langston since 1991. He received a BS degree in Dairy Science from Texas A & M in 1972. Following service in the Army during the end of the Vietnam conflict, he received a MS in Animal Nutrition from Texas A & M in 1971. He completed a Ph.D in the Dairy Science Department at Virginia Tech in 1981 in Nutrition. He conducts extension education programs in goat production and goat parasites in Oklahoma and has spoken to goat producers in over 20 states. He has taught many workshops on integrated parasite management both within and outside of Oklahoma. He conducted some of the first research showing the efficacy of sericea lespedeza in controlling parasites and has conducted a number of field studies using FAMACHA® and copper oxide wire particles. He has conducted a study on rotation grazing for controlling worms. Steve has investigated several herbs such as cayenne pepper, wormwood, and garlic for parasite control. He has written a number of articles in popular press magazines on parasite control and other subjects. Steve also conducts research and extension in the area of nutrition and designed the Langston interactive nutrient calculator on Langston's web site. He wrote the chapters in the Meat Goat Handbook on Goat Nutrition and Goats for Vegetation Management.

Dr. Ann Wells graduated from Oklahoma State University School of Veterinary Medicine and has more than 25 years of experience in livestock production, including producing and selling natural lamb and grass finished beef. Dr. Wells worked in private practice for eleven years and has worked for several sustainable agriculture organizations. While working for Heifer International, she researched parasite management strategies to reduce the need for anthelmintics. Currently, Dr. Wells operates two businesses, teaching and consulting about sustainable animal wellness plans under Springpond Holistic Animal Health, and producing and marketing grass-finished beef and lamb for Ozark Pasture Beef. Operating a sheep and goat veterinary practice sparked her interest in complementary veterinary medicine. Her philosophy is to focus on the health of the animal through controlled grazing management and stress reduction techniques and strategies. She really feels that nutrition is the key to good health. Dr. Wells works with ruminant producers, large and small, helping them develop health management plans.

Dr. Chris Rumsey received his Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree from Purdue University in 1994 and began practicing in Francesville, Ind., where he still lives. Today he practices at Livestock Veterinary Associates p.c. also known as StockVets in Rensselaer, In. StockVets provides reproductive technology services as well as general veterinary services to cattle, goat, sheep and swine producers. Dr. Rumsey has been providing Laparoscopic Artificial Insemination and Embryo Transfer services to sheep and goat producers since 2009 and today provides these services at StockVets in Rensselaer as well as on-farm services for sheep and goat producers in several states throughout the Midwest. Dr. Chris, his wife, Trisha, and children, Kaitlyn and John, have also been raising Boer goats at Rumsey Farms since 2002, selling breeding stock and show animals throughout the U.S.

Dr. An Peischel (Range Livestock Nutritionist) has been a goat producer for 35 years (and KIKOs for 30 years). She was born and raised on a beef cattle, hog and crop farm. Goats Unlimited has been involved in land enhancement, noxious weed abatement, riparian area restoration, fuel load reduction and fire breaking. She developed the Tennessee Master Meat Goat Producer Program, teaches browsing academies and artificial insemination clinics. Her goat years began on the Hawaiian Islands, expanded to Northern California and presently in middle Tennessee. An has been an invited speaker at seminars and conferences both nationally and internationally.

Lauren Manning raises and direct markets grass-finished cattle, sheep, and goats in NW Arkansas. With goats, her focus has been cultivating low-input genetics that thrive in a pasture-based, rotational grazing system. After four years as a civil litigator, she earned an LL.M. in food and agricultural law from the University of Arkansas School of Law where she now teaches a variety of courses. She is also a journalist covering food and farming for publications like AgFunderNews, Food Dive, and Successful Farming. When she is not farming or teaching you can find her riding her horse and training her herding dog.
